INTRODUCTION

Our intention is to offer you a balance and range of grape varieties, from a spread of regions which produce our South African wines. Value for money is one of our key selection criteria, whilst at the same time endeavouring to bring you some of the wines of true international stature.

We are confident that you will find a wine of your choice to compliment your meal.

THE GREEN DOOR CELLAR

Our wines are stored in our "Green Door" Cellar. The story goes, because the founders of Umngazi River Bungalows had their own "illegal" supply of alcohol, prior to the acquisition of a liquor licence, Basil Leach, the owner of Umngazi River Bungalows, used to store this "illegal" liquor in a room with a Green Door. Whenever guests ran short or wanted to buy from Basil, they would meet behind the "Green Door" and a discreet transaction would take place. The actual door into the "Green Door Wine Cellar" is made from the Yellowwood counter out of the old Umngazi Trading Store. Hence the name the "Green Door Wine Cellar". If you wish to view the Green Door Wine Cellar, please ask a member of the bar staff for assistance.

GRAPE VARIETIES

CHARDONNAY

Chardonnay - origin France. Owes its fame to Burgundy, whose wines are regarded as the benchmark for all its Chardonnays. It is also one of the traditional varieties in Champagne. Chardonnay has only been planted in South Africa since the 1980's. That has not been without controversy, the early plantings having to be smuggled in, in addition some of the smuggled plants were subsequently discovered not to be Chardonnay and have since been discarded. Fortunately, all this is in the past and Chardonnay has been widely planted. It is a variety that has grown well around the world. It is used in South Africa as a varietal, both wooded and unwooded, as a base for many of our Cap Classique Bubbles and often used to blend with other white grapes. Small compact bunches of pale green to yellow grapes.

SAUVIGNON BLANC

Sauvignon Blanc - origin France. Home in Bordeaux where the world-famous Montrachet and Meursault are made. The fine dry whites of Burgundy are produced by blending Sauvignon Blanc with Semillon. It is also a component in the incredible dessert wines Sauterne. The Loire Valley produces it in a single variety in the famous wines of Sancerre and Pouilly-Fume. South Africa produces some very fine examples of this wine both wooded and unwooded. New Zealand made excellent examples of this wine but we are catching up quickly. Compact medium bunches of small oval grassy green grapes.

CHENIN BLANC

Chenin Blanc - origin France. The Loire Valley is this varietals home and has been for the past 8 centuries. Planted throughout the world, its popularity in South Africa suffered a little in the late 80's and early 90's. Since 1995 it re-established its rightful place in the top echelons of South African wines. This was probably one of the varieties that was brought across in Van Riebeeck's time and has been extensively planted. Chenin is a big yielding grape and for this reason has been the backbone of the South African distilling business. Wonderfully versatile by nature it can be dry or sweet. The skill of the winemaker really shows and at times can be confused with a Chardonnay or a Sauvignon Blanc depending on the desired result. However, it stands alone, particularly when old bush vines are being used.

PINOT GRIGIO

Pinot Grigio (Pinot Gris) is a white wine grape variety. It is thought to be a mutant clone of the Pinot Noir grape. The wines produced from this grape can vary in colour from a golden yellow to copper and even a light shade of pink. In South Africa, Pinot Grigios are lighter bodied with a crisp, refreshing taste of subtropical and stone fruit with some spicy notes. The Pinot Grigio style of Italy is a light-bodied, often very light wine that has little colour with sometimes fizzy flavours that can be crisp and acidic. Most Pinot Grigios are meant to be consumed early. Compact small bunches of small oval green grapes.

RIESLING

Origin Germany. Not to be confused with our Cape Riesling which has been correctly identified as Crouchen Blanc. The true Riesling used to be described as Weisser or Rhine, this is no longer the case. This is very definitely a noble white grape. Very versatile producing a wine that can be sweet or dry. Planted throughout Europe with large plantings in Russia.

The true Riesling was only introduced into South Africa in the mid 1970's. Bunches are small and compact. Berries are also small and have a yellowish green colour. The grape produces an amazing amount of juice for its size.

GEWURZTRAMINER

Origin unsure. Believed to have been introduced into Europe by the Romans possibly from Egypt or Persia. However, its home is very definitely Alsace where most people would agree the best Gewürztraminer wines are made. Gewurz is German for spice which truly describes the aromatic bouquet of this fruity wine. Small plantings in South Africa. Small loose bunches of oval pink-copper berries.

VIOGNIER

Origin France. At home in the Northern region of Rhone, never really large plantings and it nearly died out in the 1960's with only 15 hectares under planting. It had a revival from the 1980's Australia and California both have good plantings. Viognier took its time to reach our shores with production of wine from these grapes only starting in the very late 1990's. Starting to become fashionable in South Africa. Medium sized bunches of green berries.

SEMILLON

Origin France. Home in Bordeaux blended with Sauvignon Blanc where the wonderful dry Graves is produced. At the other end of the scale the world-famous dessert wine Chateau d'Yquem has as its base Semillon. This grape has been very popular amongst New World producer, lots in Chile, Argentina and Australia. Surprisingly it has been around in South Africa for a very long time being introduced here in the 18th Century. It was probably the most popular grape grown in South Africa in the 19th Century. By the 1990's it had nearly disappeared. Today it is taking its rightful place in the popularity stakes. Produced both as a single varietal and as a wine used in blends. Early ripener, medium compact bunches round medium sized golden green berries with lots of juice.

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Origin France. Bordeaux is the home of this varietal where it is usually blended with small percentages of Merlot and or Cabernet Franc. This creates the world renown Bordeaux blend often referred to as Claret. Cabernet Sauvignon is the classic red wine varietal, known as the king of red varieties and acknowledged as such throughout the world. Cabernet Sauvignon has been planted in South Africa for over 200 years and is well acclimatized. In South Africa a lot of wine is produced as a straight varietal and also in various blends including the famous Bordeaux Blend. The bunches are medium sized with small round berries, that are often nearly black. Fairly tough skins with a wonderful bloom.

PINOTAGE

Origin Proudly South African. Developed by Professor Perold at the University of Stellenbosch during the 1920's. It was not until the 50's that large scale plantings took place. It really was not until the 1990's that the wine became popular. In the mid 1990's overseas buyers became keen buyers. Beyers Truter became known as the king of Pinotage for his passion for this grape. Plantings have spread from South Africa to America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Zimbabwe.

MERLOT

Origin France. Has its home in Bordeaux particularly around St-Emillion and Pomerol. It is Pomerol that produces one of the world's most expensive wines Chateau Petrus. Merlot's popularity in South Africa is fairly recent, in the last 20 years. Produced both as single varietal and blended with other red grapes. South Africa also reproduces France's Bordeaux blend very successfully.

SHIRAZ

Usually acknowledged as Origin Persia. Known as Syrah in most countries. Most producers in South Africa and Australia call it Shiraz. This is a little strange as it is generally believed that its origins were in present day Iran from the Persian town of Shiraz. Today its home is in the Hermitage and Cote-Rotie in the Rhone Valley. Australia would love to say that its home is there, for they produce some really superb wine from Shiraz. It also has a long history in South Africa, for quite a while its popularity was limited due to poor plant material.

PINOT NOIR

Origin France. Home since the 4th century in Burgundy. In addition to the wonderful Burgundy reds, it is one of the traditional grapes for making of Champagne. In fact, there is more Pinot Noir planted in the Champagne district than in Burgundy. Originally imported to South Africa by Professor Perold of Pinotage fame. Used increasingly as a single variety, we have also followed the French in including it in many of our Cape Classique bubbly. Small compact bunches of oval purple / black grapes.

CINSAULT

Cinsaut or Cinsault is a red wine grape, whose heat tolerance and productivity make it important in Languedoc-Roussillon and the former French colonies of Algeria, Lebanon and Morocco. It is often blended with grapes such as Grenache and Carignan to add softness and bouquet.

GRENACHE

Originally a Spanish grape, Garnacha. The French renamed it Grenache. Widely grown in Southern France. Mostly used in blends, but occasionally solo. Very important in those wonderful wines from Chateauneuf. A favourite in France for their beautiful Rosé wines.

SANGIOVESE

Sangiovese is the principal black grape of Tuscany and most of central Italy. Since the 1980s there has been an increased focus on producing top-end Sangiovese and many of the wines are now amongst the world's most sought-after reds. The best Sangioveses are balanced and high in acid and tannins, with a flavour profile ranging from fresh cherries and plums through to notes of leather and farmyard.
